Description

Organised by the Antall József Knowledge Centre annually, the Antall József Summer School is a two-week educational programme putting under scrutiny the most pivotal cooperation of the Central European region, the Visegrad Cooperation. Many aspects of this special partnership are examined throughout the school including history, economy policy, energy policy, innovation, foreign and security policy, culture and tourism, and the question of sustainability via lectures, workshops, debates, and roundtable discussions.

With 2016 marking the 25th anniversary of the formation of the Visegrad Cooperation, the fourth instalment of the Summer School will focus on evaluating the past twenty-five years of the Group's existence.

In addition to the transmission of knowledge, our aim is to enhance intercultural dialogue. For this reason, we organise various trips and programmes including the Visegrád trip, the Multicultural Evening, a visit to the House of Terror Museum etc.
